For example, I own a 1998 Subaru Outback and live in a Suburb of Seattle we are getting hammered with snow right now. We ventured out today and really only had one spot of trouble on a very steep hill with a host of spun out vehicles. Rather than chain up the front wheels I elected to deflate the tires down to 27lbs and had no more trouble.

The other HUGE benefit is that during the "love bug season" bug guts easily have washed off the car. The good thing is that even if they didn't, I know Resist All would pay for the repaint of the area. From personal experience, they do not repair just the little spot, they repainted the entire bumper, making the vehicle look like new again.
